Institut de l'Engagement

In 2019, Keensight Capital became a partner of l'Institut de l'Engagement, a non-profit organization founded in 2012 and chaired by Martin Hirsch. The organization targets young adults that have shown their potential and supports them on their path toward a training curriculum, job search or start-up creation. These young adults, both pre- and post-graduates, and coming from all backgrounds, are put in touch with companies, educational institutions and associations sharing the same values. Each young adult is accompanied by a mentor who advises them on the success of their project.

Keensight Capital is involved in several initiatives, leveraging the professional experience of its team members. The Keensight team helps l'Institut de l'Engagement select and interview potential candidates for the program. This selection process also presents the opportunity for the Keensight team to provide initial feedback on the plans for each candidate. In addition, individual Keensight professionals volunteer to provide mentorship to selected young adults. This is a unique opportunity for these young adults to get feedback, advice and help on their studies, job search or start-up creation.
